The Pyramid Model provides guidance for early childhood educators, early intervention personnel, families and other professionals on the evidence-based practices for promoting young children's healthy social/emotional development.

The model describes three tiers of intervention practice:

- ✓ Universal promotion for all children;
- ✓ Secondary preventions to address the intervention needs for children at risk of social emotional delays, and
- ✓ Tertiary interventions needed for children with persistent challenges.

Funded by the NJ DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES, DIVISION OF FAMILY DEVELOPMENT

The Department of Human Services (DHS), Division of Family Development (DFD) recognizes that the key to promoting positive development in young children includes helping caregivers and parents understand the adverse effects of traumatic events on young children. Effective Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health (IECMH) education has been shown to improve maternal and child health, family functioning and stability, and child and family well-being; and prevent child neglect and abuse. With support from the Race to the Top Early Learning Challenge grant and the Grow NJ Kids initiative, DFD has allocated funding for IECMH professional education/training and coaching to build local staff knowledge and capacity, and implement evidence-based practices that support positive social-emotional well-being and address the mental health needs of infants/young children and their families. The goal is to assist children and their families to effectively cope with the stress of traumatic events (such as Superstorm Sandy), promote positive early childhood development, and buffer the negative impacts by strengthening families and building resilience.
